Governor Crittenden's motto is "Let no gambler go unpunished."

There is no immediate danger of the American people being talked to death. Joseph Cook is in Australia.

About the most ridiculous thing of the day is the doctors quarreling over the worthless brain of the assassin. They should take something decent to quarrel about.

Foxhall, the greatest horse of the time, was sold in 1879 for $650. He has made tons of thousands of dollars for Mr. Keene since then, and could not be bought for $40,000.

The Democratic hope in Pennsylvania is being nipped in the bud by the prospect of Republican harmony being secured. Everything is transient to the Democrats except their blunders.

The thing that bothers the Democratic leaders in Ohio the most is the platform which they want to present to the State Convention next month. There is nothing so painful to a Democratic Convention as the consideration of a platform.

At the Fourth of July celebration in Philadelphia, a pleasant feature marked the occasion, which was the appearance on the same platform of Messrs. Beaver, Stewart and Patterson, the rival gubernatorial candidates. After shaking hands and drinking together out of a big silver loving-cup, each made an address, glowing with patriotic fervor, but with no allusion to party politics.

Dr. William A. Hammond has given a good description of Democratic principles, and here it is: They are absurd, unsound, unwarrented, untenable, inconclusive, fallacious, specious, evasive, irrelevant, heretical, unreasoned, unscientific, narrow-minded, visionary, and futile." The doctor says he had reference to the new medical code when he wrote this, but the people will believe he made a mistake and meant the Democratic party.

The New York Times says that "Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, regards as the happiest portion of her life the time she spent, soon after her marriage, in a lonely log-cabin in the forest-wilds of Wisconsin, where wolves often howled about the door." This was between 1811 and 1815, when she lived in Grant county in this State, and not far from Platteville. If Mrs. Southworth is to be believed, she has a queer idea of life. Then she lived in poverty and in the woods, unknown and alone, and now she enjoys fame, a competency, and a home surrounded by all the things of beauty that wealth can buy. She is evidently trying to get young married people to take to the woods if they want happiness.

Mr. Robeson, who is in Congress from New Jersey, has recently proved himself a giant in debate. Blaine's speech on Tarbo, which had the latter on the shelf forever, was hardly a greater achievement than Robeson's allusions to Whitthorne, of Tennessee. No man ever had his picture taken in so striking a manner as Whitthorne did when Robeson got up to answer him, and yet the name of the Tennessee Congressman was never mentioned. Whitthorne became enraged at his own picture and stormed and threatened, but Robeson was not intimidated nor checked and did not stop until he had given the country a life-portfolio of the man who took himself to be the stealer of the school fund of Tennessee. The naval bill was up for discussion and Robeson improved the opportunity to settle with Whitthorne and other Democrats. During the Forty-fourth Congress the Democrats, under the lead of Whitthorne, made an ungracious onslaught on Robeson's management of the navy, and the discussion this week gave him an opportunity to pay them back with interest compounded.

The State Board of Control has disposed of the prison labor for the next five years to M. D. Wells & Co., of Chicago, who for many years have been engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes. Five years ago the convict labor was let to Wells & Co. for 40 cents per man per day. The system of letting the convict labor has proved quite beneficial to the State. Before this plan was adopted, the annual deficiency of the State prison was from $25,000 to $30,000, while under the letting system the deficiency has not been more than half that amount. The State Board of Control wanted to make the deficiency still less, and therefore wanted more than 40 cents a day for each man. When the bids were put in for the convict labor, the bid of Wells & Co., was 47 a day for each man, being the highest. The Board, however, rejected the bid as too low, but after a conference between the Board and the firm, a compromise was made at 50 cents, and a contract entered into for five years. Those rates are quite favorable to M. D. Wells & Co., and they could well afford to pay 50 cents a day rather than lose the convict labor. In Michigan and Illinois the price of this labor is from 70 to 80 cents per man, but on account of the bad location of the State prison in Wisconsin, a much less rate had to be taken.

A SPLENDID ACT OF MERCY.

In the large cities in the East more than in the chief cities in the West, there are enterprises yearly organized for helping the poor children that crowd the streets at all seasons of the year and have no home that can give them rest or any of the comforts of life. Four years ago, the New York Tribune, aided by some of the philanthropists of that city, picked up poor and homeless boys on the streets, dressed them up, got a special train for them and sent them to Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska, where good homes were provided for them among well-to-do farmers. This enterprise was quite successful and satisfactory, and at different times some three or four hundred boys, ranging in age from 11 to 18 years, were given comfortable homes.

Another scheme to benefit poor children was started this summer in that city and under the auspices of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund, 470 children started last Wednesday for the cool and bracing Adirondack region. The entire number were taken from homes of want and suffering. They will be given two weeks, and as a matter of course, all their expenses will be paid. Railways carry them at reduced rates, and each child receives three dollars for spending money during the two weeks vacation. This party was the first of the season, and outnumbered any party which had hitherto been sent out by this charity. The country people in and about the Adirondacks keep the children two weeks free of expense. The good people there made offers to care for the little ones without pay, and these offers have been so numerous as to surpass the most sanguine expectations of the friends of the movement. These poor children, therefore, become the guests, as it were, of people who are in comfortable circumstances in the Adirondack region, and will be well entertained during their visit. As bad as New York city is, it is doing some good things for its destitute children.

If the Chicago business men who have plenty and to spare could stop reading the criminal news of their city long enough to consider what good things New York is doing for its poor children during the hot months, they might be moved to follow the worthy example of the modern Sodom.

DRUNKENNESS NO EXCUSE FOR CRIME.

It has recently been held by the Court of Appeals of New York, that drunkenness is no excuse for crime. A man was charged with murder and in defense the counsel claimed that his client was the victim of an appetite for drink which amounted to a disease that destroyed his will power to the extent of rendering him legally irresponsible. The court in which the case was first tried, found the man guilty, and an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals. In the court below the judge refused to charge the jury that the accused was not responsible because the murder was committed while the murderer was in a state of intoxication, and for this reason a new trial was asked for. But the Court of Appeals refused to grant a new trial as otherwise drunkenness would be recognized as an excuse for the committing of a crime. It held that not even frenzy or mental derangement caused by drink can exempt a person accused of murder from criminal responsibility. It was the opinion of the court that if a man voluntarily gets drunk, and while drunk commits a crime, he must be held responsible for his acts. The New York Herald vigorously sustains this view of the case, although the position so strongly taken by the Court of Appeals is not a new one.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin has never been called to pass upon this identical question, but last year it rendered a decision in regard to negligence in a drunken man. The case was taken from the Waupaca circuit to the Supreme Court. The plaintiff, as administratrix, sued to recover damages for the injuries to her husband, which resulted in his death, the deceased having been thrown out of a wagon while in a state of intoxication. The plaintiff attributed the cause of the accident to a defect in the highway, and had a verdict. The court denied a new trial and an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. The court reversed the judgment of the Circuit Court and granted a new trial on the ground that "In an action for injuries from negligence, if the person injured was, at the time of the injury, intoxicated in any degree, that fact is proper to be considered by the jury in determining the question of contributory negligence; and a judgment for the plaintiff is reversed for an instruction to the jury to the effect that 'the fact of intoxication alone' would 'not prove contributory negligence,' unless the proof showed such a degree of intoxication that 'inability would begin to affect the intoxicated person—such instruction being regarded as liable to mislead the jury.'"

THE IRON STRIKERS.

MILWAUKEE, July 7.—An officer of the North Chicago Rolling Mill Company informed the Inter Ocean correspondent to-day that the strike which closes this week has put his company behind to the amount of $500 tons of rails and 4,000 tons of bar iron. This can easily be made up, the official explained, if nothing further occurs to delay work.

The Inter Ocean was the only paper west of Philadelphia which gave in full the basis of settlement agreed upon by the strikers and the mill-owners. Early this morning the Pittsburgh manufacturers telegraphed to the North Chicago Company here asking for the figures agreed upon. The officers of the company refused to give them, telegraphing in reply that the terms were positively private. The officers were, of course, surprised later in the day to find the terms in full in the Inter Ocean.

NARROW ESCAPE.

New York, July 7.—The excursion steamer Plymouth Rock left the city this afternoon on her 330th trip for Rockaway. She had about 500 passengers on board, and was under command of Captain Martin. In the lower bay the Old Dominion steamship Breakwater, on her outward bound voyage, crossed the bows of the Plymouth Rock and took away her outboard board voyage, crossed the bows of the Plymouth Rock and took away her outboard board voyage, crossed the bows of the Plymouth Rock and took away her outboard board voyage. At the moment of the collision four or five men, evidently under the impression that the Plymouth Rock would sink, jumped on board of the Breakwater, and it is believed, remained there. After waiting a few minutes, and ascertaining that the Plymouth Rock was not struck below the water line, Captain Martin ordered the engines reversed, and the steamer set out for a return voyage to this city. When off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, the captain decided that it would be prudent to put his passengers off there. This was done. Their fares were paid by the purser, and a majority of them returned by the 5 o'clock boat from Staten Island.

STRANGE SUICIDE.

SPRINGFIELD, July 7.—John Mullet, a farmer residing one mile south of Farmingdale, this county, committed suicide to-day by hanging himself. He has resided for several years near Sanger Station, on the Wabash railway, and was thought to be in prosperous circumstances. No reason is known for his act, except the supposition that the continued wet weather and the prospect of a failure of the corn crop this year weighed so heavily on his mind as to drive him insane. He left home on horseback early this morning, and when next seen he was hanging to a tree. It is supposed that he rode under the tree, tied the rope to a limb, and placing the noose around his neck allowed the horse to pass on. The coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts as known.

HIS MISSION TO EUROPE.

New York, July 7.—The GRAPHIC learns from Chicago that Mr. Emory A. Storrs, of that city, who sailed for Europe on Saturday, went as a representative of the American cattle shippers, and will endeavor to overthrow or mitigate the prejudice of European regulations against American beef and cattle exporting interests. He has strong letters from President Arthur, Secretary Freyhuysen, and Gen. Grant.

SALE OF AN IRON MINE.

FLORENCE, July 7.—The Hon. Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette, has just sold a one-sixteenth interest in an undeveloped iron mine in the Menominee Range for $30,000 cash in hand. This indicates a value of $480,000 for the whole mine, for the development of which not a blow has yet been struck.

MILWAUKEE'S POPULATION.

MILWAUKEE, July 7.—The city directory for 1882, just published, contains 43,000 names—a considerable increase over the last issue. Allowing three and one-quarter persons to every name, a very liberal estimate, it places the population of Milwaukee at 130,750. It is fair to say that Milwaukee has a bona-fide population of 140,000 souls.

A SON'S TERRIBLE CRIME.

St. Louis, July 7.—Milton Smith, living on the Big Bend road, near Kirkwood, a suburb of this city, was shot and killed to-day by his son, Guy Smith, a wild lad of 13. His father whipped him about three weeks ago, and the boy openly boasted that he would be revenged. When asked what he would do, he said, "I'll kill him. I'll have his life." No attention was paid to this.

This morning Mrs. Eads and Mr. Smith and the boy's grandfather and father had their breakfast at, and went out on the place. When Guy came in nothing snuffed him, and when he tired of abuse, he began to assault the child and throw things around generally. His grandniece, Mrs. Eads, a very old lady, went out and called his father to quiet him. When he came to the breakfast room he seized the boy and gave him a good thrashing. The father left the boy in the room and walked out to the door. Guy remained a minute, but presently came out of his grandfather's room with a shot-gun in his hands. His father was still standing in the doorway. The boy came up close to his side, put the gun to his shoulder and fired. The shot took effect in the right side, just below the nipple, and passed clear through the body, coming out under the heart on the left side. The gun had been heavily loaded, and contained a handful of large shot. The effect was almost instantaneous. Mr. Smith sank to the ground, called out, "I am killed! Send for the doctor!" and never spoke again. The boy dropped the gun and ran but was seized by members of the family and held until officers of the law arrived. The Eads were among the oldest residents of the neighborhood, having lived there nearly forty years.

THE WEATHER.

Upper Lake Region—Partly cloudy weather, local rains, variable winds, stationary or higher temperature and pressure.
